Module 5: Pro Tips for Maximizing Refund Success Rate

Tip 1: Call at the Right Time

Best times to call:

- Tuesday through Thursday (avoid Monday and Friday)
- Early morning (8-10 AM local time) or late afternoon (4-6 PM)
- Avoid lunch hours (12-2 PM) and end of month (busy periods)

Why it matters: You'll get a more experienced representative who has more time to help you.

Tip 2: Be Polite but Firm

Do:

- Stay calm and professional
- Clearly state what you want
- Use phrases like "I'd like to request a chargeback"
- Ask for a reference number

Don't:

- Yell or use profanity
- Accept the first "no"

- Hang up without getting a reference number

Sample script:

"Hi, I'm calling about a charge on my statement that I'd like to dispute. The charge is from [Merchant] for $[Amount] on [Date]. I've already tried to resolve this with the merchant and [was unsuccessful / they haven't responded]. I'd like to initiate a chargeback."

Tip 3: Know When to Say "Chargeback"

Use the word "chargeback" when:

- The merchant refuses to refund you
- You've tried to resolve it directly and failed
- The charge is clearly unauthorized

Why it matters: "Chargeback" is a specific legal process that banks take more seriously than a general "dispute." It triggers a formal investigation.

Tip 4: Use Your Bank's App

Many banks now offer:

- One-tap dispute buttons in their mobile apps
- Automatic provisional credit while investigating
- Real-time status updates

Banks with good dispute apps:

- Chase Mobile
- Bank of America Mobile
- Capital One Mobile
- Amex Mobile

Pro tip: App-based disputes are often processed faster than phone disputes.

Tip 5: Document Everything

Keep records of:

- Screenshots of the charge on your statement
- Emails with the merchant
- Chat transcripts
- Phone call dates, times, and representative names
- Reference numbers for disputes
- Cancellation confirmations

How to organize:

- Create a folder on your computer or cloud storage
- Name files with dates: "2026-06-09_MerchantName_Dispute"
- Keep everything for at least 12 months after resolution

Tip 6: Escalate Strategically

If your dispute is denied:

1. Ask for the reason in writing — They are legally required to provide this
2. Submit new evidence — Anything you missed the first time
3. Request a supervisor — Sometimes a fresh look helps
4. File a CFPB complaint — consumerfinance.gov/complaint
5. Contact your state AG — Especially for larger amounts

CFPB Complaint Template:

"I filed a dispute with [Bank] on [Date] for a charge from [Merchant]. The dispute was denied on [Date], but I believe this decision is incorrect because [reason]. I have attached supporting documentation. Please investigate this matter."

Tip 7: Leverage Social Media

When to use social media:

- The merchant is ignoring your emails
- You've been waiting more than 30 days
- You want to speed up the process

How to do it effectively:

- Tweet at the company's official account
- Keep it factual and professional
- Include your case/reference number
- Don't share personal information publicly

Example tweet:

"@CompanyName I've been trying to resolve a billing issue for 30+ days (Case #12345). Can someone please help? I've emailed support@company multiple times with no response."

Tip 8: Know Your Legal Rights

Fair Credit Billing Act (FCBA) protects you:

- You have 60 days from the statement date to dispute
- Banks must investigate within 30 days (45 days for some cases)
- You receive provisional credit during investigation
- Banks must explain their decision in writing

Your rights include:

- Right to dispute billing errors
- Right to withhold payment for disputed charges
- Right to receive a written explanation
- Right to escalate to CFPB

Important: While calling your bank is fast, only a written dispute mailed to the billing inquiries address within 60 days of the statement date legally preserves your rights under the Fair Credit Billing Act.
